BRAZIL

Brazil: Land of Plenty

Still South America's reigning economic power and a regional leader, any mention of Brazil also demands mention of the people who delight visitors with their vitality. After all, we can credit the Brazilians with such cultural contributions as Carnival, the samba, and capoeira. The massive country boasts over 4,500 miles (7,242 kilometers) of coastline with swells rolling in from all directions.

If you dream about a sunny land, warm and crystalline water, white sands plenty of coconut trees and fresh sea breeze, you must come to the Brazil's beaches. In Brazil is possible to go to the beach the whole year and you can find in its coastline all kind of beaches, all of them having oceanic water.

There are dozens of locations that experience a safe and secure tourism operation, and will show you some of the most spectacular beaches and all the charm and culture that Brazil offers.

If somehow you are able to cover the distance by car or by bus, you will feel like you have been in several different countries, because Brazil is a continent itself, containing different cultures, languages, history, architecture, gastronomies and so on, everything unified by a common factor: the beauty of its beaches.

If you came to the country by the north, a beach start point will be, undoubtedly, Fortaleza. Known by its tropical beaches and lovely people, this fantasy place was the origin of a number of folk tales and romance books. At this point you will find two of the Top Beaches in Brazil: Jericoacoará, considered the place to visit if you want to see some of the most spectacular sunsets in Brazil; and also Canoa Quebrada, an old and small village installed on cliffs discovered by the hippies in the seventies.

Very near is Natal, the capital of the State of Rio Grande do Norte, that has become a popular place for sport events and honeymooners, also because the great variety of beaches. In the surroundings you could find two other top beaches in Brazil: Ponta do Mel (Mel Point) and Praia da Pipa (Pipa's Beach), with an incredible turquoise sea frequented by dolphins and turtles.

Pernambuco is the next state, and in spite of being small, it has two of the most beautiful beaches with the best natural swimming pools in the North of Brazil: Porto do Galinhas and Carneiros. And of course, near Recife in Pernambuco, you can find the most beautiful place in Brazil: Fernando de Noronha, which is not a beach but a group of islands with many beaches. In Alagoas, the next state, you will find three excellent beaches: Carro Quebrado; Praia do Gunga, each one of them with white and sparkling sand ending in dense blue water.

Then comes Bahia, the king state of the beautiful beaches. A place where everybody is happy, even when you arrive at the airport there is a song saying: "Smile, you are in Bahia". Here you will find a lot of beaches, including: Espelho and Morro do Sao Paulo. Other great beaches in Bahia are Taipus de For, Mangue Seco, Praia do Forte, Trancoso, Pitinga, Porto Seguro and Maceió.

In Rio Janeiro, of course you have all the famous ones, like Copacabana or Ipanema, but in terms of beauty, our selection goes to Farol beach. Sao Paulo, a state more known by its industrial city, also has a great beach that deserves to be visit: Baía de Castelhanos (Ilhabela, São Paulo).

Well, my dear friend, let me finally ask you a very difficult question, in this long coastline, where do the beautiful beaches start?
